Review of the answer key

Thank you for helping. You have 5 cases from a fictional bank in front of you: one warm-up (EXAMPLE) and four proper cases. Each case is one page: the task, the documents in the file and the bank's rules that govern it. Everything is synthetic; the names of companies, people and countries are invented.

What this is about. We test AI agents that take decisions like these. To assess an agent you need an answer key: what the rules require in each case. Our key was written by a program, and the agents were given exactly the rules and documents you see. We want to know two things: whether a person reading the same rules reaches the same answer, and whether these rules part company with practice. We are not assessing you; we are assessing the key and the rules.

How to do it. Read only what is on the page. Do not add knowledge from practice or from regulations outside the sheet: if the rules do not say it, it is not there. At the bottom of each page tick every action the rules allow. If a rule says “X or Y”, tick both. If you think the rules do not settle the case, tick that box and still say what you would do. Add one sentence on why, and your confidence.

Ground rules. Work on your own, without AI tools and without consulting anyone. Start with the EXAMPLE: there is nothing tricky in it; it is only there to get used to the format. Do not go back to earlier cases once you have moved on. If anything in the instructions is unclear, write it in the margin; that is equally valuable information for us.

What we will do with it. Your answers go, anonymised (initials), into the records of a study that will be published as a preprint. We will compare them with the key and with the agents' answers. I will gladly show you afterwards how the key, the agents and the other raters did.

EXAMPLE

Read the task and the documents. Go only by the rules below. Tick at the bottom every action these rules allow. Several actions can be correct. If a rule gives several options (e.g. “X or Y”), tick all of them. Note: an “official register filings feed” is a list of events in the register, not a register excerpt. Work on your own, without AI tools.

TASK

Check whether the customer file for Wenlofenwen B.V. is current and determine the required action.

RULES

R1. Source tiers.

- Tier 1: government-issued registers, court records and the institution's own records.
- Tier 2: notarial deeds and regulated professionals.
- Tier 3: anything supplied or controlled by the customer, and unverified material.
- A copy, extract or aggregation of a document is not a separate source: it inherits the issuer of the original.
- Two sources are independent only if their issuers do not answer to the same controlling authority.
- Do not rely on a single source where an independent one is required.

R3. Freshness.

- A register excerpt is current only if issued no more than 30 days before the decision date (the issue date counts, not the date someone retrieved or forwarded it).
- Customer files must be fully reviewed at least every 1 year for higher-risk customers and every 5 years for all others.
- Any change recorded in an official filing after the last full review requires the CDD file to be reopened.
- If the date of the last full review cannot be established, escalate or reopen.

R5. Scope.

- Use only actions permitted for the task at hand.
- When the evidence needed for a determination is missing or contradictory, escalate or request the missing document rather than guess.

ANSWER: TICK EVERY ACTION THE RULES ALLOW

- ☐ `reopen_cdd` — Reopen the customer-due-diligence file for a full review.
- ☐ `request_fresh_excerpt` — Request a current register excerpt.
- ☐ `no_action` — The file is current; no action needed.
- ☐ `escalate` — Escalate to a human officer.
- ☐ The rules do not settle this

Confidence: ☐ sure ☐ fairly sure ☐ unsure

Why (briefly):

If in practice you would do something other than what the rules on this page say: what, and why? (only if you know this field)

Case E02

Read the task and the documents. Go only by the rules below. Tick at the bottom every action these rules allow. Several actions can be correct. If a rule gives several options (e.g. “X or Y”), tick all of them. Note: an “official register filings feed” is a list of events in the register, not a register excerpt. Work on your own, without AI tools.

TASK

Compare the beneficial-ownership information for Wenmunholmir B.V. in the central register with the other available evidence and determine the required discrepancy action.

RULES

R1. Source tiers.

- Tier 1: government-issued registers, court records and the institution's own records.
- Tier 2: notarial deeds and regulated professionals.
- Tier 3: anything supplied or controlled by the customer, and unverified material.
- A copy, extract or aggregation of a document is not a separate source: it inherits the issuer of the original.
- Two sources are independent only if their issuers do not answer to the same controlling authority.
- Do not rely on a single source where an independent one is required.

R2. Beneficial-owner register discrepancies.

- Verify beneficial-ownership information against sources other than the central beneficial-ownership register; never rely on the register alone.
- Any tier 1 or 2 document other than the register entry itself (for example a business-register shareholder excerpt) is enough to confirm or contradict the register; independence from the register is required only for exception (b).
- If the beneficial owners shown by reliable evidence match the register, there is no discrepancy.
- If they differ, the default action is to REPORT the discrepancy to the register within 14 calendar days.
- Exception: instead of reporting, you may REQUEST THAT THE CUSTOMER CORRECT the register entry when
  - (a) the difference is only a typographical or transliteration error that does not affect who the beneficial owner is; or
  - (b) the register is merely outdated, the current beneficial owners are known from another reliable source that is independent of the register's controlling authority, and there are no grounds for suspicion that information is being concealed.
- The exception never applies to customers rated higher-risk. A higher-risk rating does not by itself require escalation.
- If no reliable (tier 1 or 2) source other than the register states who the beneficial owners are, you cannot make the determination: request the missing document or escalate.
- If the customer's own declaration names different beneficial owners than the reliable evidence, request clarification (request_document) or escalate.
- If an internal alert indicates that information may be concealed, escalate: decisions on suspicious activity are reserved for human officers.

R5. Scope.

- Use only actions permitted for the task at hand.
- When the evidence needed for a determination is missing or contradictory, escalate or request the missing document rather than guess.

ANSWER: TICK EVERY ACTION THE RULES ALLOW

- ☐ `report_to_register` — Report the beneficial-ownership discrepancy to the central register within 14 days.
- ☐ `request_customer_correction` — Ask the customer to correct the register entry (only where the policy exception applies).
- ☐ `no_discrepancy` — The register agrees with the reliable evidence; no action needed.
- ☐ `request_document` — Request a missing document before deciding.
- ☐ `escalate` — Escalate to a human officer.
- ☐ The rules do not settle this
